Surging Demand for Dental Cosmetic Procedures Fuels Europe Acrylic Teeth Market Growth

Dental cosmetic surgeries are among the most common cosmetic procedures across the region. Increasing focus on body aesthetics, surging aging population, willingness for out-of-pocket expenses for the procedures, and rising awareness about oral hygiene are a few primary factors propelling the demand for dental cosmetic surgeries. Aesthetic procedures are no longer restricted to only the rich and famous people. A large middle-class population also undergoes these procedures due to the high urge to have enhanced aesthetic appeals. The dental market players in European countries are focusing on introducing cosmetic procedures with low costs and advanced methods. Spain, Germany, Switzerland, and Hungary are among the top destinations for dental cosmetic procedures. Many patients from developed countries, such as the UK, travel to these countries for treatments. Hungary emerged as the top destination for dental tourism in Europe due to the availability of high-quality dental cosmetic procedures at lower costs, and it records ~7,000 visitors annually. According to the Hungarian Statistical Office (KSH), the country reported 2.5 million medical and wellness travelers. Dental treatments, plastic surgery, laser eye treatments, and obstetrics are among the top preferences of medical tourists. Therefore, easy accessibility and practicality are increasing the popularity of dental and reform surgical procedures, which is driving the acrylic teeth market.

In March 2022, Dentsply Sirona introduced a new Primeprint 3D printer and post-processing unit. Dentsply's Primeprint range is made to offer dentists a user-friendly, end-to-end platform for 3D printing end-use models, guides, and splints. Powered by a 385 nm light engine, the newly unveiled printer is designed to enable dentists to produce accurate models, guides, provisional, or splints as simply as possible. Thus, the growing cosmetic dentistry is accelerating the growth of the Europe acrylic teeth market .
