About Copper Market in Ukraine

Copper resources in Ukraine have been underestimated for a long time. Since the collapse of the USSR mining operations were unknown. Perspective reserves of copper ore are found in the Volyn region. Also Bahmutskiy Basin (Donbass) is a well-known reserve of copper sandstones, which was began to develop in the Bronze Age. The further development of the Volyn copper basin will give Ukraine an opportunity to cover its domestic demand for copper and to position itself as a major copper supplier in Europe.

The industrial production of copper is a long term process. Ukraine needs a lot of foreign and domestic investments to develop the industry. Scrap and waste are the only sources of copper production in Ukraine.

After the sharp decline in 1990-1995, copper consumption in Ukraine started to grow. However, it still lags behind that in industrially developed countries.

If Ukraine implemented the copper mining project, it would change the way copper alloys and products are made in this country. The most favorable conditions for the development of copper mining in Ukraine are to attract foreign investment to the sector.
