Abstracts

European glass packaging market is predicted to reach US$19.0 billion in 2024, witnessing growth at a CAGR of 4.89% during the period spanning 2020-2024. The market growth was driven by various factors like increasing demand for alcoholic and non-alcoholic beverages, rising beer production in Europe, growing wine trade and increasing recycling rate of glass packaging. The market is expected to experience certain trends such as surging food & beverage demand in Europe, rising middle class population and introduction of lightweight glass. European glass packaging market also faced certain challenges like fluctuating grape production and various barriers to entry. The market in 2020 is predicted to experience a moderate decline due to the emergence of COVID-19 disease, globally.

Europe glass packaging market by application can be segmented as into the following categories: beverages, food, pharmaceuticals and personal care. In 2019, the dominant share of the market was held by beverages, followed by food, pharmaceuticals and personal care. The Europe beverage glass packaging market by product can be segmented into the following five segments: still wine, beer, spirits, soft drinks and sparkling wine.
