Abstracts

Global Adhesives and Sealants industry continues to consolidate as a number of leading industry players are on the acquisition trail, especially for businesses and product lines in construction, flexible packaging, and other sectors with growth rates above GDP.

Approximately, two-thirds of the adhesives and sealants industry is considered specialty in nature, likely growing at rates above GDP, whereas the remaining one-third is commodity with growth potential equal to or lower than GDP.

Developing regions, mainly China, are driving demand in the global adhesives and sealants market. As a result, a number of producers have announced capacity expansions in China and other developing regions.

The report focuses on the global adhesives and sealants market – its segments, value, growth rate, issues, opportunities, trends etc. The US adhesives and sealants market have been covered separately. It also discusses the classification of different types of adhesives.

The report profiles some of the key industry players, including their financial information, key business strategies, etc. In addition, the report also includes the forecast of the market.
