Abstracts

Coronary restenosis refers to a heart condition in which the lumen diameter decreases by more than 50% after the percutaneous coronary intervention. After a patient's artery is opened through angioplasty or by placing a stent, it again starts closing again in Coronary restenosis. The three phases of the condition include acute recoil, injuries caused by stents can make collagen in the subintimal space, and movement of muscle cells and fibroblasts into this space.

To assist researchers, investors and business development managers, VPA Research has come up with a comprehensive report on Coronary Restenosis pipeline. The report provides insights into different therapeutic candidates in preclinical, research, discovery, NDA/IND, pre registration, phase 1, phase 2, and phase 3 trials). Drugs under development directly and through combination with other drugs are also included.

Current status, developmental phase, participating companies and entities, recent developments, orphan drug/ fast track/ other designations, drug class are provided for each Coronary Restenosis pipeline product. Mechanism of Action and the target area of the pipeline product are also provided. Further, clinical and preclinical trials along with results of the trials are also included in the report.

In addition to complete details of each product, the report provides key trends in Coronary Restenosis pipeline studies. The products under development are categorized according to their development phase, mechanism and company to provide detailed insights into the type of drugs being developed and the stages of development.
