Abstracts

The global Bovine Mastitis market size is poised to register 5.4% growth from 2024 to 2032, presenting significant growth prospects for companies operating in the industry. The industry study analyzes the global Bovine Mastitis market across By Type (Clinical Mastitis, Sub-clinical Mastitis), By Product (Antibiotics, Surgery, Vaccines, Pain Killers, Others), By Route of Administration (Intra-mammary, Systemic), By Therapy (Lactating Period, Dry Period), By End-User (Hospitals and Clinics, Veterinary Centers, Others)

With the economic impact of mastitis on dairy production and the need for effective mastitis control measures, there is a growing demand for diagnostic tests, vaccines, and antimicrobial therapies that reduce mastitis prevalence and improve milk quality. Market growth is driven by factors such as expanding dairy industry, increasing awareness of mastitis prevention and management, and advancements in mastitis detection and treatment technologies. Additionally, the expanding applications of bovine mastitis products in dairy farms and veterinary clinics, as well as the adoption of herd management software and precision farming techniques, contribute to market expansion. Further, the emphasis on sustainable dairy farming practices, antimicrobial stewardship, and milk safety regulations, along with efforts to develop novel mastitis vaccines and non-antibiotic therapies, is expected to further propel market growth in the coming years.
