Abstracts

The global Companion Animal Vaccines market size is poised to register 9.6% growth from 2024 to 2032, presenting significant growth prospects for companies operating in the industry. The industry study analyzes the global Companion Animal Vaccines market across By Technology (Live Attenuated Vaccines, Inactivated Vaccines, Toxoid Vaccines, Recombinant Vaccines, Others), By Animal (Dogs, Cats, Others)

With the increasing pet ownership and the growing recognition of pets as family members, there is a rising demand for companion animal vaccines that protect against infectious diseases and zoonotic pathogens, ensuring the health and well-being of pets and their human caregivers. Market growth is driven by factors such as expanding urbanization and pet humanization trends, rising awareness of preventive veterinary care and vaccination protocols, and advancements in vaccine technology and adjuvant formulations. Additionally, the expanding applications of companion animal vaccines in veterinary clinics, animal shelters, and pet boarding facilities, as well as the development of combination vaccines and non-adjuvanted formulations, contribute to market expansion. Further, the emphasis on One Health initiatives, responsible pet ownership, and vaccination compliance, along with efforts to improve vaccine accessibility and affordability in underserved communities, is expected to further accelerate market growth in the coming years.
