Abstracts

Cryptosporidiosis (crypto) Drug Development Pipeline Study, H2 2018 is the latest infectious disease publication with comprehensive information of Cryptosporidiosis (crypto) pipeline products.

DISEASE OVERVIEW

Cryptosporidium is one of the most widespread intestinal parasites that primarily affect children globally. The disease leads to diarrhea that sustains for long term, leading to mortality among children with low immunity. The infectious disease is spread through Cryptosporidium (typically C. hominis and C. parvum), an enteric protozoan.

Cryptosporidium disease is spread through fecal-oral route via different means including human-to-human, cattle, food, water etc. Children in developing and low income countries are mostly affected by the disease. In developed countries, waterborne outbreaks lead to Cryptosporidium.

As the treatment options for Cryptosporidium are limited with nitazoxanide being administered for patients with good immunity levels. However, for patients with low immunity and for the AIDS affected patients, the effectiveness of drug is uncertain.

To meet the potential unmet demand for Cryptosporidium treatment and due to its widespread presence worldwide, ioGenetics Inc, Novartis AG and Romark Laboratories LC are conducting pre-clinical/ clinical trials for evaluating their therapeutic compounds.
