Foodservice Coffee Market Insights, 2025

The foodservice coffee market is being driven by rising consumer expectations for quality, customization, and caf?-style experiences. With third-wave coffee culture influencing global consumer palates, demand is rising for single-origin beans, specialty brews, and barista-level quality across all formats—from quick-service restaurants and offices to university cafeterias and boutique hotels. Chains like Starbucks, Dunkin', and Costa Coffee are leading innovation in cold brew, nitro coffee, plant-based lattes, and seasonal blends, while also expanding drive-thru, subscription, and digital ordering channels. In the post-COVID world, hygiene-conscious formats like contactless ordering, self-serve kiosks, and coffee robots are gaining popularity. Moreover, the growing use of sustainable beans and ethically sourced certifications is strengthening brand loyalty among conscious consumers. As foodservice outlets diversify their beverage menus to compete with at-home brewing, high-margin coffee offerings remain central to their profitability and customer retention strategies.
