The global Male Artificial Urinary Sphincter market size is poised to register 6.6% growth from 2024 to 2030, presenting significant growth prospects for companies operating in the industry. The industry study analyzes the global Male Artificial Urinary Sphincter market across By Type (AUS with a balloon reservoir (3-component), AUS with a spring (2-component)), By End-user (Hospitals, Clinics, Academic & Research Centers).

The Male Artificial Urinary Sphincter market is experiencing steady growth attributed to the increasing prevalence of urinary incontinence in men, rising demand for minimally invasive treatment options, and advancements in implantable medical devices for urinary control. Male artificial urinary sphincter (AUS) is a surgically implanted device designed to manage urinary incontinence by restoring voluntary control over voiding function, primarily in patients with stress urinary incontinence (SUI) following prostatectomy or other pelvic surgeries. Factors such as the growing incidence of prostate cancer and benign prostatic hyperplasia (BPH) requiring surgical intervention, and the need for effective and durable treatment options for post-prostatectomy incontinence are driving market expansion. Additionally, the development of next-generation AUS devices featuring improved design, materials, and components for enhanced durability, biocompatibility, and patient comfort, and the increasing adoption of minimally invasive surgical techniques such as robotic-assisted and laparoscopic implantation procedures are fueling innovation in the market. Moreover, the expansion of healthcare infrastructure and surgical expertise for male urinary incontinence management, and the integration of patient-centered care models and multidisciplinary approaches involving urologists, surgeons, and rehabilitation specialists are driving market growth. Furthermore, efforts to raise awareness about urinary incontinence treatment options, optimize patient selection and surgical outcomes, and address post-operative complications and device-related issues are expected to further propel market growth in the coming years.
