Abstracts

The global PMS And Menstrual Health Supplements market size is poised to register 6.05% growth from 2024 to 2030, presenting significant growth prospects for companies operating in the industry. The industry study analyzes the global PMS And Menstrual Health Supplements market across By Product (Single Nutritional Supplements, Vitamins, Minerals, Herbal supplements, Others), Combined Nutritional Supplements), By Consumer Group (Premenstrual Syndrome (PMS), Perimenopause), By Formulation (Capsules/Tablets, Powder, Softgels, Others), By Sales Channel (Online sales channel, Direct sales channel, Pharmacies/Drug stores, Others).

The PMS and Menstrual Health Supplements Market is witnessing growth driven by increasing awareness of women's health, rising prevalence of premenstrual syndrome (PMS) symptoms, and growing demand for natural and alternative remedies. PMS and menstrual health supplements encompass a variety of vitamins, minerals, herbs, and other dietary ingredients aimed at alleviating menstrual discomfort and promoting overall menstrual health. Key trends shaping its future include the development of specialized formulations targeting specific PMS symptoms such as mood swings, bloating, and cramps, integration of evidence-based ingredients supported by clinical research, and expansion of product offerings to include functional foods and beverages catering to women's nutritional needs during menstruation. Moreover, increasing consumer demand for non-pharmacological approaches to menstrual symptom management, expansion of distribution channels through e-commerce platforms and retail pharmacies, and regulatory initiatives to ensure product safety and efficacy contribute to market expansion.
