Excerpts from Research

According to the conducted research, the greatest share of the market of public catering belongs to a fast food segment – 60% in value terms. This segment underwent the least negative influence of crisis, and showed the highest growth both on sales volume in value terms and on the number of points of service. Some consumers are still reserved in the expenses which aren't really necessary and instead of going to the restaurant of full service they prefer to eat at home or choose less expensive catering establishments as fast food or democratic restaurants.

In the period of economic instability owners of cafe and bars in Russia looked for new ways of involvement of new clients and of enlarging profit. A number of the companies chose diversification of the menu as a way to increase the size of the average check, and also to increase the number of cash operations in cafe-bar. Both in cafe, and in bars special menus for a breakfast and business lunch were included, and also sale of takeaway coffee, thus, the segment entered the successful competition with fast-food establishments.

At the same time, on education Russians spent less than % of means, for health care - by  %, for communication services *** %.
