EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The cocoa market in Turkey was equal to 163.40 million USD (calculated in retail prices) in 2014. Until 2024, the cocoa market in Turkey is forecast to reach 505.79 million USD (in retail prices), thus increasing at a CAGR of 9.96% per annum for the period 2019-2024. This is a decrease, compared to the growth of about 14.51% per year, registered in 2014-2018.

The average consumption per capita in value terms reached 2.12 USD per capita (in retail prices) in 2014. In the next five years, it grew at a CAGR of 12.78% per annum. In the medium term (by 2024), the indicator is forecast to slow down its growth and increase at a CAGR of 9.20% per annum.

The overall cocoa market has been shaped by several main aspects in the last few years. Some of the most important are premiumization, health and wellness, and sustainability. Demand for premium and high-quality fine flavor cocoa has been growing in recent years. In fact, it is the fastest growing segment, propelled by the proliferation of specialty and premium chocolate products. In addition, consumption of high-quality cocoa is further encouraged by its high content of flavonoids, which are known to have beneficial effects on health. Higher demand for specialty cocoa in Europe can be found in countries such as Belgium, France and Germany, where the standard of living and the level of incomes are high. As for production, most of the cocoa is traditionally produced in Africa, but in recent years, competition from companies in Asia Pacific and Latin America is intensifying.

Consumers are increasingly paying attention on factors such as provenance and sustainability, as well as on the quality and diversity of different origins. In order to respond to the growing expectations of customers, companies are trying to highlight not only the origin of the cocoa, but also the story behind the brand and the place where the end-product was manufactured. In accordance with the advancement of consumers' environmental and ethical consciousness, certified cocoa and chocolate products are also gaining popularity over the last few years.

Another important development on the market is the introduction of a new type of chocolate, which, according to its creators, is the forth type after white, dark and milk. The new type, developed by Barry Callebaut, is called ruby chocolate and is made by ruby cocoa beans. It has been commercially available since 2017 and is extensively promoted as chocolate without any additional flavorings or colorings, which serves the growing demand for clean label products.
